I AM DYING.

The following beautiful poem we copy from the Memphis Bulletin. It is rarely we find such contributions in the columns of a newspaper It is sweetly, beautifully sad :

Palse my p'll-w, husband, dearest—Faint and fainter comes my breath;
And these shadows stealing slowly,
Must, I know, be those of death.
Sit down close beside me, darling,
Let me clasp your warm, strong hand,
Yours that ever has sustained me,
To the borders of this land.

For your God and mine—our Father
Then shall ever lead me on—
While upon a throne eternal,
Sits his loved and holy Son;
I've had visions and been dreaming
O'er the past of joy and pain,
Year by year I've wandered backward,
Till I was a child again.

Dreams of girlhood and the moment
When I stood your wife and bride,
How my heart thrilled with Love's triump
In that hour of woman's pride.
Dreams of thee and all the earth-chords
Firmly twined about my heart—
Oh! the bitter, burning anguish
When I first knew that we must part.

It his passed—and God has promised
All thy footsteps to attend!
He that's more than friend or brother,
He'll be with you to the end.
There's no shadow o'er the portals,
Leading to my heavenly home—
Christ has promised life immortal,
And 'tis He that bids me come.

When life's trials walt around thee,
And its chilling billows swell;
Thou'lt thank Heaven that I am spared then,
Thou'lt then feel that "all is well."
Bring our boys unto my bedside;
My last blezzing let them keeps
But they're sleeping—do not wake them;
They'll learn soon enough to weep.

Tell them often of their mother. Tell them often of their mother,
Kiss them for me when they wake;
Lead them gently in life's pathway,
Love them doubly for my sake.
Clasp my hand still closer, darling,
This, the last night of my life,
For to-morrow I shall never Answer when you call me "wife."

Fare thee well, my noble husband, Faint not 'neath the chastening rod; Throw your strong arm 'round our children; Keep them close to the and God.

THE PAST CTERNITY.

BY HENRY KIRKE WHITE.

Oh, it is fearful, on the midnight couch, When the rude rushing winds forget to rave, And the pale moon, that through the casement high Surveys the sleepless muser, stamps the hour Of uter silence—it is fearful then To steer the mind, in deadly solitude, Up the vague stream of probability:
To wind the mighty secrets of the past, And turn the key of Time. Oh, who can strive
To comprehend the vast, the awful truth, Of the eternity that hath gone by, And not recoil from the dismaying sense Of human impotence? The life of man is summed in birth days and in sepulchres: But the Eternal God had no beginning? He hath no end, Time had been with him For serviasting, ere the dedal world Rose from the gulf in ioveliness—like him It knew no source, like him 'twas uncreate. What is it, then? The past Eternity! We comprehend a future without end; We feel it possible that even yon sun May, roll forever; but we shrink amazed—We stand aghast, when we reflect that Time Knew no commencement—that heap age on age, on age,

And million upon million without end,
And we shall never span the yold of days
That were, and are not but in retrospect.
The Past is an unfathomable depth,
Beyond the span of thought; 'the an elapse
Which hath no mensuration, but hath been
Forever and forever.

Not so Dull as he Looked.

He was a stupid darkey, anybody could see that, and as he walked into a Vicksburg grocery store, some of the idlers that congregated in that neighborhood determined to play a joke on him. He walked up to the landlord and asked him for work—anything, no matter what it was, so long as it paid a living. The landlord had no work, but referred him to Bill Dobbins who sat or a chair research.

was, so long as it paid a living. The landlord had no work, but referred him to Bill Dobbins, who sat on a chair near by, with his feet perched on a barrel. Bill had the reputation of being a terrible wag, and as the darkey approached him, the boys crowded round to see the fun.

"Boss, I'm hard up; can't you live me a job?" asked the negro.

Bill looked up, winked at the boys, and replied:

"Yes, I think L can; if you'll feed yourself and furnish the stock, I'll get you to do some plowing for me."

Bill laughed at this witty saily, the boys laughed, and the landlord reared, Bill being one of bis best customers. The darkey scratched his head, appeared to reflect a minute, and then remarked:

"I can't do that, boss. I had a proposition just like that this morning, and as the other man came first, I think he ought to hab the preference."

"What was it?" inquired Bill.

"Weii," says the darkey, "I saked a man for work this morning, and heays: "If you'll furnish the lines and the bait, I'll give you half the fish you ketch."

Eays Bill:

— The expenses of Plymouth Church are so large that it is difficult to figure out how they are to be met with the reduced sum realized by the sale of pews last week, and it is apprehended that the society may have either to raise money in some new way or to cut down salaries. Mr. Beecher gets $20,000, Pastor Halliday $2,500, Sexton Weld $3000, his assistant $300, Henry Camp, for the music, $5,000 this year, a reduced sum, and the missions cost about $12,000. These figures, which are approximated correct, make a total of $44,300 for current expenses, to be met out of the $36,929 realized by the sale of the pews. The cost of heating, lighting and cleaning the church, which is large, is not included in the estimated expenses. Last year the trustees had

HR Dame Back.—Governor Duval, of Florida, was the son of a poor Virginiau, a stern, atrong, tacitum man. The boy was a huge youth of fifteen. At the cabin fire, at bed-time, according to the custom of putting on a back log, the old man said, between the whife of his silent sine:

the custom of putting on a back log, the old man said, between the whiffs of his silent pipe:

"Tab, go out and bring in that gum back-log, and put it on the fire."

Tab went out and surveyed the log. He knew it was of no use explaining that it was too heavy, nor prudent for him to return without having it on his shoulder. His little sister, passing, was not surprised that he requested her to bring out the gun and powder horn, as a possum or coon might have passed or the brother might have seen bear signs. She brought the gun and Tab started. He found the way through the woods into Kentucky, in 1791. After an aissance of sighteen was he was alested in Congress. A man of immense size and strength, he started for Washington, going by the way of his old home, to see the folks who had long since given him up for dead. Entering the little cabin door near bed time, he saw the identical aum log. He shouldered it, culled the latch string, and with his load stood before the old man, pipe in mouth, saquiet as usual.

— TRENTON, January 15.—Governor McClellan was inaugurated to-day in the presence of a crowd of about 20,000 persons. In the course of his inaugural address he said: I trust gentleman that you will agree with me in gladly accepting the existing settlement of the Southern question as final, and in insisting that no selfish interest of individuals as mistaken policy of party shall be allowed to rovive a subject which honor and interest alike require to be buried forever among the dead issues of the irrevocable past.

— The message of Gov. Nicholls, of Louisiana, delivered on Thursday, is devoted principally to State finances. Referring to Kellegg's admission to the Senate, he says: "I cannot close without entering my solemn protest against the recent action of a majority of the United States Senate, under the forms of the constitution, in refusing to Louisiana the representation in that body to which she was entitled by rejecting the claim to a seat therein of Hon. Henry M. Spofford, who was elected by you in accordance with the constitution and laws of the State and of the United States, with an exceptional unanimity."

— The Grand Duke Nicholas, com-Instructions to A Jury.—Speaking of Courts, reminds us of a funny instruction said to have been given by a Judge to a jury in—well, we won't say in what State. It runs this way;

"If the jury believe from the evidence that the plaintiff and the defendant were partners in the grocery, and that the plaintiff bought out the defendant and gave his note for the interest, and the defendant paid for the note by delivering the plaintiff a cow, which he warranted 'not breachy,' and the warranty was broken by reason of the breachiness of the cow, and the plaintiff drove her back and tendered her to the defendant, but the defendant refused to receive her, and exceptional unanimity."

— The Grand Duke Nicholas, commander-in-chief of the European army of invasion in Turkey, is stern, a martinat in discipline, and reckless of the lives of his soldiers. Some time since the Moscow nobles, in an address on the state of the Empire, which, after much difficulty, they managed to get into the hands of the Emperor, asked his recall, and openly charged him with incapacity. On hearing of it, and that the Czar had taken it into consideration, the Grand and tendered her to the defendant, but the defendant refused to receive her, and the plaintiff took her home again, and put a heavy yoke or poke upon her, to prevent her from jumping the fence, and the cow, in attempting to jump the fence, by reason of the poke or yoke, broke her neck and died, and if the jury further believe that the defendant's interest in the grocery was not worth anything, the plaintiff's note was worthless, and the cow good for nothing, either for milk or beef, or for 'green hide,' then the jury must find out for themselves how they will decide the case—for the coart, if she understands herself, and she 'thinks she do, don't know how such a cussed case should be decided." taken it into consideration, the Grand Duke warded off the blow by declaring that he would blow his brains out if he was removed from the army. This, and the victory at Plevan, put an end to it. on the topmost current. One cannot go on the street anywhere without having his ears offended with the vilest words, and his zeverence shocked by the most profane use of sacred names. Nor does it come from the old or middle aged do, don't know how such a cussed case should be decided."

An Important Clais.—Wesley A. Black, Esq., of South Caroling, has lately addressed a letter to Governor Hampton which may lead to important practical benefit to the State, and which furnishes another illustration of the atter income another illustration of the utter incompetency and worthlessness of our expetency and lating to these claims over to Governor Scott, who gave them te Wallace, then a member of Congress from this District.

Of course this was the end of them at that time. We trust that they will be resurrected, and that immediate steps will be taken to procure the payment of this just debt due the State with interest.

He bought a guitar and practiced for six long, weary months. But at the end of that time a smile of joy lit up his wan and weary face, and his brow grew radiant with joy as he inspected the corns on the thumb of his right hand. The hour was 10 p. m., and he we dered through the stilly night to the boarding house where she lived, and directly under that window which had been so often sinctified by her presence, he commenced to toot: (Twang, twang, bim.) "I wandered b-i-i the brookside, (kling, clang, boo,) I wandered b-i-i the mill"—and the sash was gently raised with a crash, and a deep bass voice yelled out: "I vish as you fall into your brook off your brookside and trown yourself in dos mill, odor I plow my vissil and call a polizeidiener." It was cruel of her to have changed her room without letting him know.

WHAL MADE GEORGE WASHINGTON
LAUGH.—A cheerful view of Washington is given in a story once told by Mra.
Madison to a little girl, who now repeats it in Lippincott's Hagatine:

"One day in Philadelphia," said Mrs.
Dolly Madison, "I was sitting in my parlor with a very dear frierd, Mrs. R. B.
Lee, when in walked Payne Todd (her son) dressed up in my bed gown. While we were laughing at the figure he cut, the servant threw open the door and announced General and Mrs. Washington.
What to do with that dreadful boy I didn't know. He could not face the President in that garb. Neither could he leave the room without meeting them, President in that garb. Neither could he leave the room without meeting them, for the door they were entering was the only one. I made him crawl quickly under a low, oroad settee on which I was sitting. I had just time to arrange the drapery when the Washingtons entered. After the courtly greeting, and the usual com, liments of the season, there came from under the settee a heavy airly which evidently attracted the Gen.

The story is told, and it is said to be entirely true, that at the recent dedication of a Baptist Church in the scountry, the ceremony of immersion was performed for the first time in that church by a well known Babtist minister of this city. When he had entered the water, and while waiting for the candidate, the minister suggested that somebody sing an appropriate hymn. One of the deacons who stood near by heard the suggestion, and without thinking struck up the familiar hymn, "Pull for the shore." The hymn proved to be so suggestive that neither the minister nor congregation could refrain from an audible snile for some time, and the ceremony had to be postponed until the preacher could recover his gravity.

UP WITH THE TIMES!

THE undersigned hereby notifies the citizens of Anderson and vicinity that he has moved his BOOT and SHOE SHOP from his old stand in the Benson House to new quarters on Main Street, near the Market.
I am prepared to manufacture fine and substantial Boots and Shoes for ladies and gentlemen, at shortest notice, and guarantee the prompt delivery of work at the time appointed. I will call at residences to get measures for ladies' orders when desirable.

The friends of Mr. R. F. McKINNEY
will find him at work in my shop, where he will be glad to see them, and continue to do their work.
